Vizja University has been an academic institution that places high demands on the academic community. It has conducted multidisciplinary and innovative scientific research with international impact. It has offered high-quality education to both Polish and international students in various fields and disciplines. It has combined the tradition of teaching with modern approaches. The University has strived to strengthen its pro-social impact, both locally and globally. It has been a future-oriented institution that responds to the changing needs of the open economy. It has sought to promote attitudes conducive to the development of a democratic and civil society. The University has been neutral in terms of worldviews and religion, and has been tolerant and socially sensitive. It has educated almost 20,000 students, including foreigners from 124 nationalities worldwide, in the fields of economic sciences, humanities, law, and computer science. The University has also offered English-language programs, such as Finance and Accounting, Political Science, Psychology, Management, Fashion Design, German Philology, English Philology, and Dietetics.
